participated in a new series of gold-ring summer pop concerts recorded in Heligoland, and due largely to BBC initiative, a new monthly series of "European Pop Jury" was launched at the beginning of 1971, with more countries participating. This was also a year of marked success for the BBC in European festivals. At the Sopot Festival in Poland, the BBC entry, "Friday Brown", took first prize and at the Montreux Jazz Festival, Ian Carr's "Nucleus" entered by the BBC was the top feature.
